Sights Set On UN
THE offer by Mr Chou En-lai to discuss with the Chinese Nationalists "steps and conditions for the peaceful liberation of Taiwan" appears at first sight to be nothing but a brash piece of propaganda, but read as part of the context of his foreign affairs review to the National People's Congress, it suggests a deeper meaning.

One striking feature of the address was that it glowed with confidence. The Chinese Premier spoke of his government's diplomatic successes, envisaged official friendly relations with countries of Latin-America and North Europe, and went so far as to predict the restoration of the traditional friendship between the peoples of America and China "through their respective governments." The speech fairly oozed international friendliness.

GAINST this background the offer to the Chinese Nationalists infers that Peking regards this as the last chance Chiang Kai-shek will have of direct negotiations over the future of Taiwan. It also suggests that Chou En-lai doesn't care two raps whether the Nationalists accept or refuse the offer.

In reality the Chinese Nationalists are in no position to do a deal with Peking for the "liberation" of Taiwan without (a) surrendering their identity as an internationally recognised government, and (b) abrogating their treaty of friendship and mutual aid with the United States. Both are unthinkable at this time. Equally unlikely is any mass defection of Nationalists to the Chinese mainland.

It is noticeable that Chou did not couch his offer in terms of an ultimatum; did not talk about "liberating" Taiwan by force should the Nationalists reject his proposal for peaceful negotiations. It tends to confirm the belief held by observers in China that Peking has abandoned the idea of forceful occupation of Formosa realising that any such attempt would inevitably precipitate a war of international dimensions.

THIS spectacular part of Chou's speech was his unqualified offer to the Nationalists, yet of much deeper significance was his reference to the prospects of obtaining recognition of the Peking government from Latin-American nations. If he accomplishes this Peking's prospects of being voted into the UN will be considerably enhanced. And if Peking is anxious to secure Taiwan as part of China, it is even keener to gain admittance to UNO. To this end it is unlikely the Chinese Communists will for the time being strongly press the Taiwan issue. A gesture has been made to let the world know that it is a subject which must be dealt with in due course. But clearly Chou En-lai's speech revealed that Peking's immediate sights are set on UN membership.

REDS OPEN FIRE ON MARCHING STRIKERS

Tanks, Guns Quell Disorder

Berlin, June 28. Thousands of rioting Poles tore down Communist flags and shouted for the Russians to get out of Poland today in a flash rebellion in the industrial Polish city of Poznan.

The Communists replied with tank fire which killed an unknown number of people.

"An official Polish government communiqué admitted "serious disturbances".

BRITON SAYS 'I HEARD FIRING'

A British businessman who was at Poznan today told Reuter tonight: "We saw crowds of workmen, apparently steel-workers, in overalls marching in an orderly manner through the streets.

"They carried in front of them a large Polish flag. They had placards too. They were shouting something. I was told it was 'We want bread.'"

"The demonstration appeared to be organised because most of the shops were closed with their shutters down and all the trams had stopped and the drivers had left them."

"It was impossible to get a taxi. Vehicles which tried to pass through were blocked by the crowds."

"An English woman in a Polish car with a Polish driver told me that her car was nearly turned over. Her driver explained to the men surrounding her that she was a foreign diplomat and they allowed her to go on."

"Later I heard a bit of individual shooting—not sustained shooting but two or three shots at a time, as if shots were being fired over the heads of a crowd."

"Troops were gathered around. Other tanks could be heard rumbling in the distance. Everyone, however, seemed quite happy."

"When we left for the airport to catch our plane to Warsaw, we were taken right round the outskirts of the city. We passed about 12 tanks coming into the town."

The businessman who described these events was Mr Kenneth G. Treherne, of the Danmarks Export Company, London.—Reuter.

Long processions of workers marched through the street shouting "We want bread".

Then they attacked the headquarters of the Polish United Workers (Communist Party), set fire to a prison, attacked other buildings and overturned trams.

The outbreaks occurred at a time when the city was full of visitors for the International Fair.

Eyewitnesses returning to Berlin said mobs of Poles raged through the city in defiance of soldiers, stormed gaols, set the prisoners free and burned prison records in the streets.

They said they heard from Poles that similar riots occurred at Słetkin, 80 miles north-east of Berlin.

Poznan is a city with a population of 325,000 people, midway between Warsaw and Berlin.

The Polish Premier, Mr Josef Cyrankiewicz, and other members of the government hurried to the disturbed city.

The Government communiqué said the outbreak had now been quelled, but in an appeal for "special vigilance" admitted the possibility of other outbreaks throughout Poland.

"In view of the events in Poznan, the special vigilance of all working class peoples and of all patriotic forces of the nation is needed in face of any attempt at anti-State outbreaks," it said.

It blamed the outbreaks on a "revolutionary underground" and intelligent agents who had taken advantage of "economic difficulties and grievances in certain work establishments".

OUR REVOLUTION'

The outbreak was reminiscent of the June, 1953 revolt against the Communists in East Germany. An estimated 20,000 to 50,000 East German workers rebelled against the Government in East Berlin at that time and were quelled only after the Russians moved in tanks, troops and armoured cars. The rioting spread to every other major city in East Germany.

Eyewitnesses arriving from Poznan said the workers rose in the streets with shouts of "This is our revolution!" The uprising began as a general strike, but reports here tonight said it spread quickly into a general revolt.

The population of the city joined thousands of workers who milled through the streets demanding bread, withdrawal of Russian troops and an end to Communism.

The demonstrators threatened to lay siege to the City Hall where top Communist leaders were gathered, eyewitnesses said. The rioters jammed streets and squares and stopped

'Carefully-timed Plot' Says Warsaw

An official Polish Government communiqué said: "Serious disturbances occurred today in the town of Poznan."

"For some time now, imperialist agents and the reactionary underground have been trying to utilise the economic difficulties and grievances in certain work establishments in Poznan to provoke outbreaks against the people's power."

"It is no accident that the enemy has chosen precisely Poznan as the scene of provocation at a time when the International Fair is being held there."

"The point was to cast a shadow on the good name of People's Poland and to hamper the promotion of our peaceful international co-operation."

"The enemy's agents succeeded today in provoking street riots."

"Certain public buildings were attacked and this led to violence."

"Relying on the conscious part of the working class, the authorities have mastered the situation and restored order in the town."

"Representatives of the Government and of the Central Committee of the Polish United Workers' Party, with Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz, assumed the people's power."

"It is a fact that the enemy has chosen precisely Poznan as the scene of provocation at a time when the International Fair is being held there."

"Those responsible for the disturbances which bore the imprint of a large-scale and carefully prepared provocative and diversionary action will be punished with all the severity of the law."

"In view of the events in Poznan, the special vigilance of all working class peoples and of

NO HANGING BILL PASSED

London, June 28. The House of Commons today passed through its final stages the bill aimed at abolishing the death penalty.

Only about half the full number of members were present for the debate which was a "free vote."

The bill now goes to the House of Lords, where it is possible, according to political circles tonight, that it may be defeated, particularly in view of the gang warfare which has recently broken out in London's underworld.

—France-Press.

The Senate sub-committee investigating comparative airpower today released parts of General Gavin's testimony after conferring for security.

In H Senator James Duff (Republican) asked: "If we got into a nuclear war, and our strategic air force made an assault in force against Russia with nuclear weapons so that the weapons exploded in a way where the prevailing wind would carry them southeast over Russia what would be the effect in the way of death?"

General Gavin replied: "Current planning estimates run on the order of several hundred million deaths—but would be either way, depending on which way the wind blew."

The Reason Why

General Gavin was quoted as adding: "If the wind blew to the south-east, they would be mostly in the USSR, although they would extend into the Japanese and perhaps down into the Philippine area."

"If the wind blew the other way, they would extend well back into western Europe."

Senator Duff said the purpose in asking the question, was to show that the Soviets, with their knowledge of the destructive possibilities of nuclear weapons, would know that it would "not be wise" to start a nuclear war in the light of the retaliation to be expected.

Rails and road communications were seriously crippled.

Meanwhile, the New South Wales coastal strip south of Sydney has been lashed by the worst gales in history, with winds as high as 70 miles per hour damaging small town shacks and fishing fleets along 150 miles of coast.—United Press.

Police were reported to have fired on the massed crowds menacing police headquarters.

The strike that became an uprising was called in protest against low wages. All shops closed except a few food stores that stayed open in agreement with the strikers.

Eyewitnesses told their stories to correspondents in West Berlin.

"There were many dead," said the witnesses. They said tanks fired their guns and troops used machine pistols and rifles.

According to the US State Department radio station in West Berlin, the demonstrators shouted again and again to foreigners: "This is our revolution. Tell the world what we are doing. We want the Soviets to get out and we want better conditions after 11 years. We want bread."

Taxis drivers and streetcar conductors deserted their vehicles and joined the mob.

Warsaw, June 28. The United Nations Secretary General, Mr Dag Hammarskjold, arrived in Warsaw today on the invitation of the Polish Foreign Minister, Mr Adam Rapacki.—Reuter.

Gangsters Go To Gaol

Paris, June 28. Three Montmartre gangsters, who were involved in a shooting match on the fashionable Avenue des Champs Elysees in Paris after robbing an unarmed Indian Maharajah, were today sentenced to prison terms of between two and four years.

One man, Jean Sereni, was killed in the affray. A second, Claude Bertrand, described in testimony as the protector of a cabaret hostess, who "fleeced" the Maharajah, was severely wounded.—France-Press.

COMET MISHAP IN MOSCOW

Moscow, June 28. A demonstration flight of Britain's Comet II was cancelled today because the invited Soviet passengers were unable to return to the air field after the original take-off was postpone when a fault was discovered.

Royal Air Force engineers found that a battery had gone flat because of an electrical wiring fault.—Reuter.

Lille, June 28. French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau said today that the evolution occurring in the Soviet Union may completely modify the international situation.

M. Pineau, speaking at a congress of his Socialist Party here, said the main effort of French diplomacy should be aimed at "liquidating the cold war." Contacts between the East and West should be re-established, he said.

World Problems

The Foreign Minister declared: "There is no question of renouncing our alliances, but that does not prevent us from establishing links with other countries."

M. Pineau said that French diplomacy should also seek solutions to the various outstanding world problems.

Speaking of the situation in the Middle East, M. Pineau said: "Peace must be maintained in this region. We know how a conflict could break out, but we do not know how it would end, or how far it would extend."

French diplomacy had now arrived at the point where "we can use the same language with Khrushchev, Tito and Foster Dulles. This is because we have only one policy," he said.

Premier Present

M. Pineau said he was in favour of Franco-German co-operation. He noted that "it required a Socialist government to reach an agreement on the Saar, acceptable to the French, the Germans and the Saarlanders."

Premier Guy Mollet and other Socialist members of the Government were present when M. Pineau spoke. — France Presse.

US-Denmark Atomic Agreement

Washington, June 28. The United States and Danish Governments yesterday signed a new agreement on co-operation in the field of the peaceful use of atomic energy. It was officially announced here today.

Under the terms of the agreement, the United States may send to Denmark up to 12 kilogrammes of uranium 235, enriched to a maximum of 20 per cent, destined for the Danish research reactor programme.

The US may furnish also small quantities of uranium 233, uranium 235 plutonium to Denmark for research purposes.

The agreement completes an accord concluded between the two countries a year ago, setting a limit of six kilogrammes on the quantity of enriched uranium 235 that the US could return to Denmark. — France Presse.

Bouhafsa may also meet the Pakistani Premier, Mr Choudhury Mohammed Ali.

Mr Nehru later met the British Communist Party vice-chairman, Mr Rajai Palme Dutt, at his residence. The nature of their discussion was not known. Communist Party officials here said Mr Dutt's visit was "more than a mere courtesy call." — United Press.

Free Speech Possible In The Kremlin Soon

FURTHER SIGN SEEN IN FOREIGNER'S IZVESTIA ARTICLE

By SIDNEY WEILAND

Moscow, June 28. A further sign that Russia's "parliament," the Supreme Soviet, may soon allow some kind of "free speech" was seen today in an unusual article in the Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia.

The Government organ provided space for an article by a member of the Council of the French Republic, M. Leo Hamon, who said that the Soviet Union would be aided by a parliament where opinions were publicly voiced and personal views expressed.

M. Hamon said, "During a period particularly when the tendency to enforce collective leadership was making itself so strongly felt in the Soviet Union an important part in the effective realisation of this leadership could be played by a well informed parliament where opinions are voiced publicly and everyone can be called upon to state his personal views."

Implication

Western observers here say that publication of such a statement, particularly by a foreigner, was strange, because it implied that at present personal opinions are not voiced within the Supreme Soviet.

So far, the Supreme Soviet meetings, which, according to the constitution, are held twice yearly, consisted of set speeches. Only criticisms allowed have been of bureaucracy or administrative shortcomings, but never of Kremlin policies.

All Government decisions have always been unanimously approved.

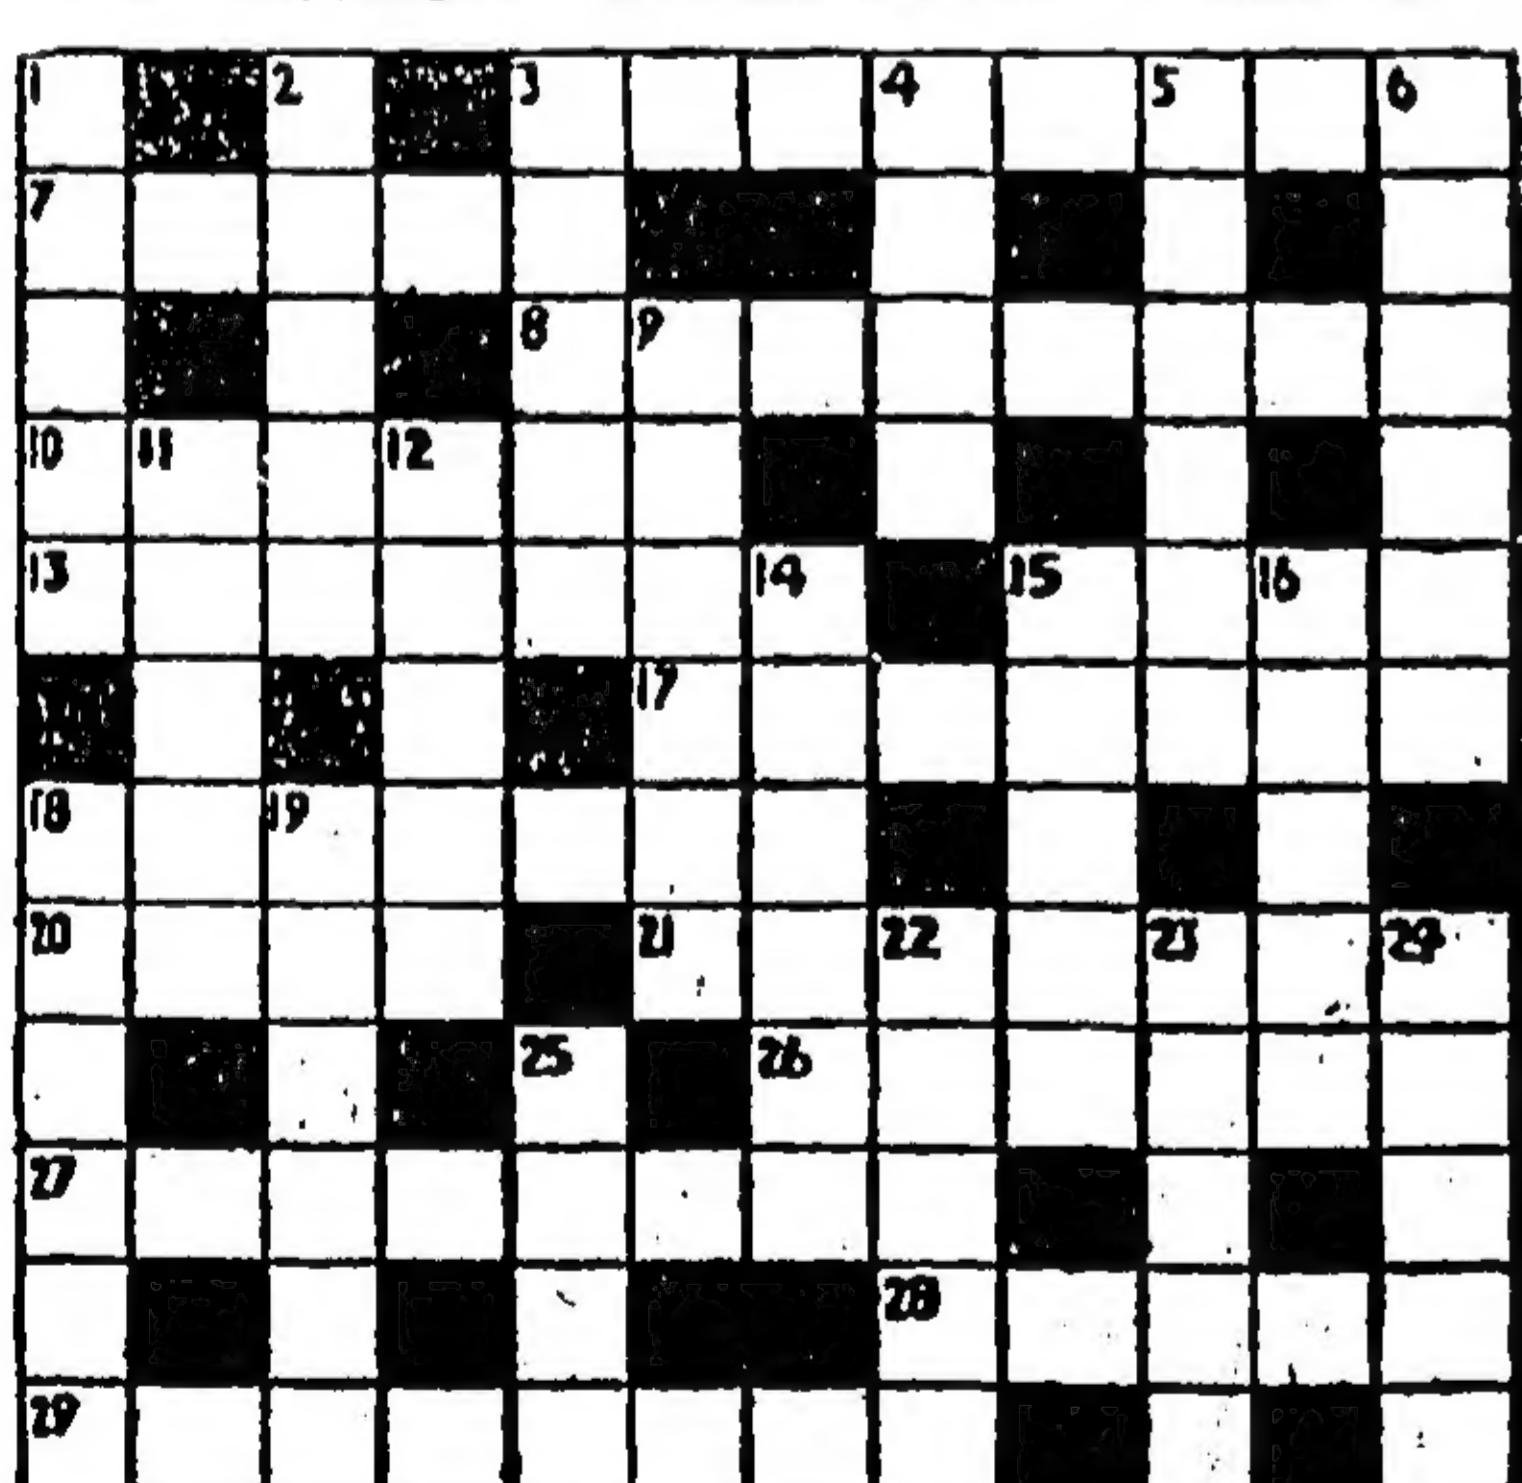

M. Hamon's article, which welcomed growing Soviet contacts with other parliaments, said that Russia's attitude had grown "as a result of the creation of new traditions, and as a result of the courage shown by the USSR in publicly correcting what she regards as mistakes."

Rubber Stamp

Western observers linked the publication of this article in an official Government newspaper with the wide-spread reports circulating here that the Russians would try to introduce some degree of "free speech" in an attempt to disprove the charges that the Supreme Soviet is only a "rubber stamp" for government decisions.

These reports have been coupled with theories that the Soviet Commanders Blamed For Wartime Setbacks

Moscow, June 28. The authoritative journal "Problems of History" today blamed Soviet commanders for Russian military setbacks in World War II and emphasised the importance of the second front in the final victory over the Fascist enemies.

It was the first public criticism of individual army commanders for their conduct of military operations during the last war although Communist Party Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev was reported to have blamed the "one-man" rule of the late Josef Stalin.

The controversy over whom to blame for the Soviet military reversals was believed by observers to reflect a difference of opinion between Communist Party leaders and the military. The journal apparently expressed the view point of the party.

Part Of Cult

But the editors of the Problems of History said the Red Star's contentions are "contradictory to historical truth." Some observers speculated that the criticisms of the generals could be interpreted as part of the attack on the "cult of the individual" which was used to build up certain military men to positions of great popularity.—United Press.

Shortcomings

The Journal's criticisms were contained in a review of the recently published "Outline History of the Great Patriotic War." The book, it said, suffered from "serious shortcomings."

The journal attacked the book for the loss of strategic initiative by the Soviet Army was due to "fascists . . . incorrect evaluation of the enemy, and individual commanders and chiefs who did not know how to organise the fighting action of troops and direct them properly."

The journal attacked the book for its omissions and mistakes. It said the book glossed over the defeats suffered by the Soviet Army, and failed to show the difficulties and the hardships suffered by the Russian people.

It stressed that the Soviet Union was part of the anti-Fascist coalition with the United States, Great Britain and other states which "facilitated our victory, and aided in the historical task of destruction of bloody Fascism despite the secret plans and calculations of the imperialists."

Army Dispute

The article took the book severely to task for paying little attention to the importance of the second front.

In a significant footnote to the article, the editors of the journal sided with the Military Herald, the organ of the Defense Ministry, in its dispute with the army newspaper Red Star.

The Military Herald had blamed Russia's initial defeats in World War II on unpreparedness.

'MRS MOPS' ON STRIKE

Sydney, June 28. A meeting of 300 women cleaners in the Trades Hall in Sydney decided to call a 24-hour stoppage of all women cleaners in the city to air their grievances over working conditions, rates of pay and working shifts.

A recent announcement that fares would be increased in NSW led to the calling of the meeting. The women claim that the increase would make it almost impossible for them to continue, since they have to come to work each morning and once at night.—China Mail Special.

Chinese Judge At The Hague Dies

The Hague, June 28.

Mr Hsu Mo, Chinese Judge of the International Court at the Hague, died today.

Mr Hsu Mo, who was 62, was elected to the International Court at his first elections, in 1946. He was re-elected in 1948 for a new term of nine years.

In 1945, he took part in the work of the Committee of United Nations Jurists, in Washington, which prepared the statutes of the new International Court. He was an adviser to the Chinese delegation at the San Francisco meeting of the United Nations in June, 1945.

FORMER ENVOY

A former ambassador to Australia and to Turkey, Mr Hsu Mo had been a professor of law at the University of Tientsin (1922 to 1925), Dean of the "College of Arts" at Nankai University in Tientsin, and President of the Court of Shanghai.

While a professor, he wrote a book, "Notes on the Diplomatic History of China."

He studied at the Tientsin and Washington universities. —France-Press.

IKE DISCUSSES DEFENCES WITH WILSON

Washington, June 28. President Eisenhower today called the Secretary of Defence, Mr Charles Wilson, to a conference to discuss the defences of the United States.

The White House Press Secretary, Mr James Hagerty, said they would discuss testimony Mr Wilson will give tomorrow before a Senate committee headed by Senator Stuart Symington.

The Senate group is investigating the relative strength of United States and Soviet air power.

Mr Hagerty said the President asked to see Mr Wilson and discuss with him the nation's posture of defence.

Talked With Dulles

Mr Wilson is the second member of the Cabinet to have a meeting with the President since Mr Eisenhower entered Walter Reed Army Hospital for stomach operation.

The President has talked both personally and by telephone with the Secretary of State, Mr John Foster Dulles.

Mr Hagerty said he doubted if either Mr Wilson or the chief presidential assistant, Mr Sherman Adams, who is to accompany Mr Wilson to the hospital, had anything to say after the meeting with the President.

Mr Hagerty said, however, that he might have something to say himself after the meeting.

The meeting apparently had no connection with Mr Wilson's recent controversy with senators over the defense bill passed by the Senate.

Asked if it was possible, Mr Wilson was about to resign, Mr Hagerty said, "A lot of members" wanted clar a free braise. East therefore led back the nine of hearts, but didn't escape from trouble with this return.

Declarer covered with the ten, West played the jack, and dummy won with the queen. Now South could force out the ace of hearts at the cost of only one trump trick.

FINAL AMERICAN OLYMPIC TRACK & FIELD TRIALS START TODAY

By "RECODER"

The final United States Olympic Track and Field Trials take place today and tomorrow at Los Angeles and the first three in each event, irrespective of their past record of achievement, will be selected to represent the United States in the Olympic Games at Melbourne in November.

A fourth alternate will also be selected who, after a final trial later in the season, may replace anyone of the first three in his event who, trial performances show, has not kept up his training.

The struggle for berths on the Olympic team will be intense in most events even if certain of the contenders look almost certain of a berth on recent performances.

THE SPRINTS

In the sprints the main question is if Duke University's Dave Sime, a consistent world record breaker and equalled till he was injured in the first trials two weeks ago, is fit enough to qualify. The American AAU gave him and Franklin Held, world record-holder in the Javelin Throw, a special place in the final trials—an unprecedented step in the history of American Olympic trials.

Many leading athletes have failed to qualify, notably among them schoolboy High Jump record-holder Walter Mangham who had cleared 6 feet 9½ inches earlier this season but was edged out last week at Bakerville.

Even if Sime is fit it is improbable that he will beat Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian College of Texas who proved quite conclusively at the Berkeley trials two weeks ago that he could outrun Sime.

The injured and now apparently recovered Thane Baker of the Air Force and California's Lemon King will be Sime's top contenders in the 100 Metres. Baker ran 10.3 in the Armed Forces trials in heat before injured and was sufficiently recovered last Friday to run third to Morrow and King in the most competitive trials of them all so far.

Two good outsiders here are also Armed Forces champion Ira Murchison, who has clocked 10.2 this season, and Pennsylvania's John Haines, a much greater sprinter, judging by his placing in competition than his times have suggested this season. Haines, however, is also in the 400 Metres.

In the 200 Metres at Bakerville last Saturday, Olympic Champion Andy Stanfield was inches behind Thane Baker in 20.6 seconds, one of the fastest times for the 200 Metres around a turn in history.

So it looks very much like the three Olympic berths here will go to Morrow, Baker and Stanfield. J. W. Mishburn of Oklahoma A & M, who returned 20.0 seconds for the 220 Yards around a turn earlier in the season and who was sixth last Saturday, is not too likely to be in the picture as he is also in the 400 Metres.

MIDDLE DISTANCES

Mishburn's chances in the 400 Metres will depend largely on Tom Courtney of the U.S. Army and formerly of Fordham. Courtney, better known as one of the world's fastest half milers, was never regarded as much more than an average quarter miler until he clocked 40.7 in the Armed Forces Championships two weeks ago and then came through with a magnificent 45.2 seconds last Saturday at Bakerville.

If Courtney decides to concentrate on the 800 Metres, we may not see in one race the three greatest ever quarter milers in history. The other two are Lou Jones of the Army, formerly of Manhattan, world record-holder in the 400 Metres in 45.4 seconds, and Jim Lea of the Air Force, world record-holder in the 440 Yards in 45.2 seconds.

But Courtney, with no one but Army Sowell of Pittsburgh to fear in the 800 Metres, may be tempted to try the 400 where he will also be running for a 1,000 Metre Relay berth and a certain Olympic Gold Medal.

Without Courtney in the struggle for the third 400 Metres berth should be between Mishburn, Haines and Charlie Jenkins of Villanova, though there are also many other fast men in the field.

Sowell and Courtney look certain for two of the 800 Metres berths, and the consistent Long-Stanley, world half mile record-holder Lon Spurrier and Army's (ex-Illinois) Gene Maynard, one of the most improved half milers of the current season, as well as Olympic Champion Mal Whitside should make a race of it for the third berth.

The 1,000 Metres seems to be between Bobby Seaman of UCLA, Jerome Walker of the Los Angeles Striders, plucky veteran Fred Dryer of the New York Athletic Club and Tom Greenman Joe Viall, Seaman who would have been favorite for the last few weeks, is still very much against it in the improving Walker and Viall.

The longer distance Olympic berths look quite safe for Dick Sowell of the Collegiate Track &

O'Brien and world record-holder Fortune Gordon are also certain of two of the District berths. The third berth here is very open with several men in the 100-foot class.

Similarly, Cy Young of the Olympic Club looks certain of a berth in the Javelin Throw. Leo Long of the Olympic Club and Sid Knott of the NYPC are the next best on performance. Phil Conley of Cal Tech, if only on account of his consistency, looks a good challenger.

In the Hammer Throw, Cliff Blair of Boston University is the new American record-holder at 211 feet 3 inches, but his Olympic tryouts performances so far have been poor. The more consistent Hal Connolly of the Boston Athletic Association, Albert Hall of Cornell and John Morrissey of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be very hard to beat. There are also Bob Backus and Marty Engel of the New York Athletic Club to be reckoned with.

The appended tables show the best performances this season of the week-end's finalists in the final American Olympic Tryouts at Los Angeles. As performances for several additional qualifiers last week-end are not available and they did not register a good performance earlier in the season, there is a blank against their names in the performance table. In any case, they are most unlikely to be anything but very much also-

100 METRES DASH

While required 10.9 to take sixth place at Bakerville last Friday, it looks like 10.8 may be required for sixth place in the Armed Forces trials.

Though Ohio State's Glenn Davis and Notre Dame's Aubrey Lewis, with their 10.8 and 10.9 in the Central Collegiate Championships at Milwaukee, look the best men in the 100 Metres Hurdles, there is no guarantee that they will find themselves on the trip to Melbourne.

The recent pace has been very fast and Eddie Southern of Texas looks an excellent bet for the winner. Though Southern's best so far is 51.2, it is a well known fact that he is faster both on the flat and over the hurdles than either Davis or Lewis. Veteran Josh Cuthrell, who hasn't had much competitive experience this season, the others, and Compton's young Willie Atterberry will also be very much in the running if we are to judge on earlier trials form.

THE JUMPERS

The High Jump trials have so far been something of a farce with many good men eliminated and many indifferent performers qualifying. At Los Angeles it is most likely to be Charles Dumars of Compton, Ernie Shelton of the Los Angeles Athletic Club and Don Stewart of the Southern Methodist University Freshmen quality.

But Shelton has been from consistent this season while Vern Wilson of the Santa Clara Youth Centre has been going more often over the real heights. Notre Dame's Bernie Allard, though he has still to clear 6.8, is another consistent jumper and good competitor who may challenge Shelton.

In the Pole Vault it looks very much like Bob Richards of the LAAC, Don Bragg of Villanova and Bob Gutowski of Occidental, but George Miller of the Air Force, Fred Barnes of the Olympic Club and Bobby Smith of the LAAC will have good competitive records should one of the "big three" falter.

In the Long Jump there are five 20-footers in the final trial, though only one of them has managed a 20-foot leap this year. On consistency of form the year's lone 20-footer, Ernie Shelly of Pierce Junior College of California, should be discounted against Gregory Bell of Indiana, Rafer Johnson of the UCLA (who has yet to leap 20 feet) and John Bennett of the Army.

But anything can happen in the Long Jump. It may be that for the first time in history three or more men will be over 20 feet in the same competition and one cannot discount veteran George Brown of the Los Angeles Striders or Pan-American Champion Rosslyn Range. Shelly, too, may live up to last week's form.

The situation in the Hop, Step and Jump, stable all season, suggests Bill Sharpe of West Chester (Pennsylvania) Touchers' College, Ira Davis of La Salle College of Pennsylvania and Willie Hollis of the Army as the three American Olympians. However, Ken Sheller of the Air Force have been showing improved form of late.

THE THROWS

It will surprise anyone if any one of Harry O'Brien of the Air Force, Bill Nieder of Kansas (Maynard, one of the most improved half milers of the current season, as well as Olympic Champion Mal Whitside should make a race of it for the third berth.

The 1,000 Metres seems to be between Bobby Seaman of UCLA, Jerome Walker of the Los Angeles Striders, plucky veteran Fred Dryer of the New York Athletic Club and Tom Greenman Joe Viall, Seaman who would have been favorite for the last few weeks, is still very much against it in the improving Walker and Viall.

The longer distance Olympic berths look quite safe for Dick Sowell of the Collegiate Track &

Beat bad weather the Bradshaw way

By HARRY BRADSHAW

COMING from Portmarnock on the edge of the Irish Sea has earned me the reputation of being an expert when the golfing weather is windy and rough. Perhaps I can still get my figures in a gale. It was not always like that. I picked up the game originally on an inland course.

So I had to learn to play in a wind like anyone else courses by the sea.

Anvise carry on if they put their mind to it, and I will try to point you on the right lines by telling you how I tackle the weather weather we always seem to do is to keep the ball low and boring into the wind. The first step is to take a shorter grip of the club.

Next, reduce your backswing by three-quarter swing. The idea is to make you use the hands more than the arms in putting the ball into the work.

If you carry out these two simple rules you double your chance of getting the ball in play and halve the chance of playing a destructive shot.

GO UP

There is a third point you must never overlook—always go up a club higher than you normally would. For example, if you shot a five-iron length take a four-iron and so on.

Now for the stance. Stand slightly behind the ball with the feet square to the line of flight. The arms must be kept short.

Keep the pivot small. The way to make sure is to allow the left heel to come no more than two inches of the ground.

There should be little or no rotation of the wrists. Both arms come straight down to the ball.

Make sure that the ball is taken in the palm. This will keep the ball low, rising no more than 10 feet during a flight.

If you are a beginner, it's a good idea to watch Henry Cotton. Play in wind don't miss it. To me, he is one of the best.

For a downswing, stand with the club short and make sure to hit down on the ball. That means striking the ball first and then the ground.

The last of the club will ensure that you get the ball in the air.

RELAX. The golfer's greatest enemy particularly in the wind. The arms must be tightened up. Don't do it relaxed every shot you play.

great bad weather players.

PUTTING: When you have reached the green do not over look the fact that the wind is something to contend with.

To keep a steady stance and maintain control, stand with the same again go down the shaft a few inches with your right leg.

With an uphill or the ball is bound to come into the air. This way to overcome this is to play the ball with the club short and stand in close to the ball with the stance square.

DON'T SWAY

The most common mistake is to take a full-length club and consequently find tendency to sway. To beat this, make a conscious effort to bring the right leg in the backswing.

For a downswing, stand with the club short and make sure to hit down on the ball. That means striking the ball first and then the ground.

The last of the club will ensure that you get the ball in the air.

Good Throwing At Area Athletic Championships

A feature of the Area Athletic Championships in the United Kingdom last Saturday was the very much improved standard in the throwing events and the longer runs again saw some world class performances.

Among Area records broken were three that had long been in the possession of such outstanding names in British athletics as Sydney Wooderson, Godfrey Rampling and Lord Burghley.

Wooderson's Mile record went at the Southern Championships at Motsupur Park, London, to a newcomer to the top rank at this distance in J. A. Morrison of Cambridge Harriers who clocked 4 minutes 10.2 seconds.

In this race Peter Clark of Salisbury AC was second in 4:11.6. A. V. Lewis of Woodford Green AC third in 4:13.0 and even the sixth man, 10-year-old S. R. Langridge, clocked 4 minutes 14 seconds.

It is noteworthy that most of the best Southern Milers stayed out of this race which was very much a reserves affair.

Michael Wheeler of Bournemouth AC broke a record long held by Godfrey Rampling when he clocked 47.7 seconds for 440 yards at the same meeting.

Gerald Carr of Woodford Green AC was again in great form with the discus and reached 164 feet 11 inches for a new area record.

Even more encouraging for the future of the Discus event in British athletics was the fact that second and third place went at a good 153 feet 4 inches to Peter Isbister of Ilford AC and Johnny Sampson of Kent AC, the placings being decided on their second best throw.

GREAT RUNNING

There was also some magnificence Three Miles running at the Southern Championships as Hugh Foord of Brighton AC won in 13 minutes 35.2 seconds from Ken Norris of Thames Valley Harriers (13:40.2) and Frank Wyatt of Bristol AC (13:46.0).

In an additional race for nonathletes to the Championship, F. Salvat of Finchley Harriers won in 14:05.2 and the third man was home in 14:10.2. Five years ago Salvat's performance would have ranked among the best in history, but such is the pace today in distance running that anyone not under 14 minutes for Three Miles cannot even be considered an Area Championship aspirant.

Ken Wimhurst cleared 48 feet 10½ inches in the Hop, Step and Jump at Motsupur Park for another Southern Championships record.

Performances at all the Area

Championships in the Shot Put, Discus Throw, Hammer Throw and Javelin Throw were much better than in previous years, but the sprinting and the jumping were poor. In the jumping events Britain still lags far behind the standards of continental Europe.

Another of Britain's field event records came much closer to world standards as Suzanne Aldry improved her own Discus Throw record to 148 feet 2 inches.

Only sprinter to break "ovens" for the 100 Yards was Eric Sandstrom of the RAF at the Northern Championships at Manchester who clocked 9.0 seconds.

THIRD VICTIM

Test batsman Willie Watson, seeking a good innings to re-establish himself in the eyes of the England selectors, never settled down and after scoring six became Wilson's third victim when trying a big hit.

Wilson had then taken three for 23 in 10 point 3 overs. He had no further success against the defensive play of Vic Wilson and Brian Close and at stumps his figures were 27-13-40-3—Routledge.

Tab Hunter Credits Teen-Age Fans For His Meteoric Rise

Facing facts is a serious matter with youthful actor Tab Hunter, and he believes in putting the credit right where he believes it belongs—with America's teen-age fans.

"I say in all honesty and sincerity that if it weren't for the teen-agers I wouldn't be around today," said Hunter, who is expected to make huge numbers of bobbysoxers swoon in Warners' "The Burning Hills."

Hunter points to the multiple activities in which teen-agers participate in the interests of their favorites.

"They go to the movies, of course," he said, "and they write fan letters and they form fan clubs. I think anyone who says they don't build box office favourites is 100 per cent wrong."

Popularity which is bestowed by teen-agers can be lasting, too, as well as provide a springboard for other successes, Hunter said. Frank Sinatra's career was cited by the young actor as an example.

KEEP UP CONTACT

"When he opened at the Paramount in New York years ago, one critic wrote, 'the guy sings too sincerely,'" Hunter said. "The critic added, 'who does he think he is?'

"So look at Sinatra today. He's a dramatic star and commands a very high price for each picture he does. A few years ago people figured he wasn't too far from being washed up. No, the guy who doesn't give proper attention to the strength of teen-agers is making a mistake."

Hunter said his young fan have been "wonderful" to him and took him up with happy fervour after he appeared in "Battle Cry." In return, he said, he makes it a point to help them out whenever he can and to drop in on teen-age groups when his schedule permits.

"I discovered that once the teen-agers drop you, you're just about lost as a star," he said. "What may be yells and screams to some ears can be just plain music to mine."

Paul Douglas, who early in his career was Jack Benny's first announced straight man and later a sportscaster, figures Hollywood success may be based on a good voice as well as on a handsome face or intriguing figure.

Douglas has no doubts or hesitations when asked what single talent he would credit with being responsible for his rapid rise in the picture world. "My voice," he said. "There's no question about it."

The actor figures that a voice with a personality has been a top item here since sound entered motion pictures. Most of the leading stars are recognised instantly by fans who just hear their voices.

Douglas, now at work in Paramount's "The Leather Saint," said his boomerang radio voice led to success in Hollywood and on Broadway. It started with a part

FRANCO SEEKS FORMULA FOR PERMANENT REGIME

Madrid, June 28.

General Francisco Franco is seeking a formula to permit his dictatorship to evolve into a more permanent regime.

Legal experts are at work drafting plans which would enable a king or a regent, to take over if General Franco should die or withdraw from power. The difficulty lies in how to distribute the executive functions of head of state. Prime Minister and head of the Falangist Party, now held by General Franco.

Legal experts are trying to find a way of choosing a Prime Minister without reverting to a unicameral parliamentary system, as the party's party permits. The Falangist Party would play under the new condition.

Change Regime

General Franco favours making Prince Juan Carlos 17-year-old grandson of the last monarch, King Alfonso XIII, king in some years' time. But neither the Falangist Party nor the powerful labour unions like the idea of a return to Monarchy.

Many Monarchs, too, think that if a king is to be restored, it should be Don Juan, father of Prince Juan Carlos. This is partly because they think Don Juan would change the present regime. General Franco's plan to merge the Monarchy and the Falangist regime.

Political commentators think that General Franco would do well to yield some of his power immediately by naming a Prime Minister, though it seems doubtful whether he would agree to this.

They agree that General Franco devotes himself mainly to the role of Head of State and to the planning of the broad lines of the national policy, with the result that the Council of State is left to him. The Minister has a great deal of autonomy.

The censorship policy of his friend, Callejo, has met with much criticism. The suspension of literary reviews on the foreigner issue of the Morocan independence issue, which is seen as having spared Spain the losses in men killed and in expenditure which France suffered in that area.

China Mail Special.

Well Pleased

This would give Spain the equivalent of the Monet Plan in France or the Vinot Plan in Italy, and would end the uncertainty which at present surrounds economic policy.

While there is criticism of internal policy, most Spaniards are well pleased with General Franco's handling of the Moroccan independence issue.

The officials said that they wanted to find out "what determines people's attitude towards foreigners and foreign cultures—the books they read,

San Franciscans Protest Against Modernisation

San Francisco, June 28.

Citizens of San Francisco are fighting what they call "the modernisation" of their city.

More than 1,000 influential property owners have bluntly told municipal and state officials that they will not permit construction of more "freeways" (super-highways), within the city.

Businesses which have thrived on roadside traffic find themselves barricaded from the highway by ten-foot steel fences officially designed to keep pedestrians off the highways.

The State Highway Commission is at present completing a system of freeways which will run round the outside of San Francisco. The one link remaining to be built would cut right through the Golden Gate Park, an island of 1,200 acres within the city. This has aroused the organised protests from the citizens of the area. It is they who have demanded that all freeway construction be halted.

The approaches to this link will also entail the demolition of almost a hundred homes in the exclusive residential area.

STRANGULATION

But protests based on concern for park beauty and homes have received little sympathy from the planners. The professional attitude is reflected in the reply given to those who are protesting by Mr Paul Opperman, the San Francisco City Planner.

"Freeway construction is one of the most controversial subjects in California at the present time because the 12,000,000 citizens of the state own almost 6,000,000 automobiles and all seem to use them at the same time.

This mobile mode of living has inspired the construction of six and eight-lane highways in the vicinity of large towns. The most important of them, costing as much as 2,000,000 dollars (about £700,000) a mile, have been built near Los Angeles and San Francisco.

On these highways, the traffic moves at an average of 60 miles an hour although the authorised speed limit is 55 miles an hour. The number of cars "moved" during an hour runs into thousands.

The theory of the freeway is that it will permit the traffic to "flow" more rapidly and thus "save time" for the motorists.

In practice, however, it does not always work out like that. When the San Francisco Peninsula highways were only four lanes wide, for example, people could drive from "The City" to Palo Alto in about 40 minutes. Now, with the eight-lane freeway finished, the same journey takes more than an hour and sometimes two hours or even longer travel times of the day.

HALT CONSTRUCTION

Johannesburg, June 28.

A group of Johannesburg detectives have been investigating certain drug dispensing machines in the city.

They wanted to discover whether these coin-operated machines were being used as a means of distributing noxious drugs disguised in packets of well-known headache tablets.

When the entire contents of one machine was emptied it was found that three packets of headache tablets contained strong habit-forming drugs.

Close scrutiny revealed that there were markings on the packets which were foreign to the original printing.

These same foreign markings have appeared on certain cigarette packets that have been dispensed from similar mechanical dispensers.

Drug peddlars are believed to have access to the mechanical dispensers. "Watchmen" operating for the peddlars collect the extra payment.—China Mail Special.

A Reporter Embarrassed Syngman Rhee

Seoul, June 28.

A Korean newspaper reporter was fired today because he asked President Syngman Rhee an embarrassing question at the chief executive's press conference.

Twenty-seven-year-old Cho Se Hyung lost his job because he asked Rhee to comment on the alleged bribery by the Liberal Party in connection with the National Assembly's recent election of Assembly leadership rods.

The reporter's boss said he fired Cho because the newsman defied his order not to bring up the question at the presidential news conference.—United Press.

Blue Chips Supported

Looking down the list the next group to show losses is the blue chip section and as I indicated earlier Ice House Street men are surprised these falls were so moderate. But for the support of the Chinese banks and overseas capital coming on to the Exchange this month, utilities might have presented a very different picture today.

Utilities dropped 30 cents to $23.00. Electrics lost 25 cents and Telephones 20 cents. As from next week, there will be one quotation for Electric and two (old and new) for Telephones.

Both ferry shares are down on the week. Star by $2 and Youmati by $1. You will remember that last Friday this newspaper published details of a harbour bridge plan for the Colony. The news sent both shares down.

WORLD COTTON MARKETS

New York, June 28.
Cotton futures trading today continued to be a slow and narrow affair.

July contract adjustments and moderate trade buying in the March and far forward July contracts provided the main interest.

Otherwise traders marked out of the Government surplus stock, or some change in the tenor or crop and textile markets developments.

The absence of delivery notices, and a further decrease in the certified stock, steadied the spot month after a slightly lower start.

A private crop survey said it is not possible to determine how much cotton acreage will be placed in the soil build during the current season, but in the overall it is not expected to affect production very much this year.

The certified stock declined 451 bales from the previous posting to 7,088 bales, a new low since Nov. 30, 1955. Open July contracts today totalled 116,500 bales. Trading in the spot month will end on June 18.

Local redemptions for the week ended June 22 totalled 20,000 bales leaving the not stock of 1955 crop cotton under loan at 6,080,478 bales.

Conspiracy And Corruption Trial

Agent Warned Of Skimping Work

Mr R. V. Jefferys, War Department clerk of works, continued his testimony on the construction work along the Route TWSK in 1953 and 1954 at the trial of two army officers and a civilian contractor on charges of conspiracy and corruption before Judge K. R. Macfie at the Victoria District Court this morning.

Mr Jefferys said on one occasion he had noticed slackness in supervision of work and on other occasions had warned and contract agent of a general skimping of work, poor concrete and dirty aggregates.

A wire recorder was used to record Mr Jefferys' evidence.

The accused are Chau Chung-sau, 38, managing partner of the Shun Hing Construction Co., Major Donald Peacheay, 47, and Capt. Harry Curtis, 46, both of the Royal Engineers attached to the RE Works Services.

They are alleged to have conspired together between November 12, 1953, and August 19, 1954, to cheat and defraud Her Majesty's Government in connection with construction work by the Shun Hing firm.

First accused is additionally charged with three counts of corruption, six of larceny and one of fraudulent conversion, the last count being alternative to the latter charges.

Peacheay is charged with two counts of corruption and Curtis with one.

Mr Desmond Mayne and Mr John Hobley, Crown Counsel, are prosecuting, assisting by Det. Insp. M. W. Lee. Mr Patrick Yu is defending Chau, instructed by Mr K. Y. Yung, of Messrs Zimmerman and Co. Mr A. J. Clifford, instructed by Mr J. C. Black (Messrs Hastings and Co.) is representing Peacheay and Curtis.

Referring to two diaries in connection with the work on the Route TWSK in February and March, 1954, Mr Jefferys said the diary entries were false and Captain Curtis had signed them.

THE WORK

The work in those two months comprised mostly flag-men directing traffic, laying of turnarounds in the "C" Section, laying of a concrete road, fixing the form work, finishing

CONDENMED

By March 1, witness said, the turnarounds had been laid to the Kowloon side. Three days later, twenty yards of turnarounds in the "C" section were condemned and ordered to be re-laid. The contractor, after being given 24 hours, was forced to lay the top carpet of the turnarounds at the beginning of "C" Section. Later excavations were carried out and a drain was installed.

On March 13, the laying of turnarounds in the whole of "C" Section was completed and work started on "D" Section. Mr Jefferys also made a calculation as to the expenditure and found that a total of $101,070.61 had been used leaving the balance of $2,307.00 with which to complete the section. He estimated that a total of $10,000 would be needed to complete the "D" Section and ordered the turnarounds laying in "D" Section suspended pending further allocation of money.

On March 16, witness said, Captain Curtis ordered turnarounds to resume, saying that a further $10,000 was certain to be allocated. Hearing is continuing.

POLISH REVOLT

Eyewitnesses said the telegraph workers left their jobs to take up the cry. Telephone communications to Poznan from West of the Iron Curtain were cut off.

Solicitor Appeals Against Striking Off Decision

John Leslie Lynn, a solicitor who was ordered to be struck off the roll by Mr Justice C. W. Reece on May 16, this morning appealed to the Full Court comprising the Chief Justice, Mr M. J. Hogan, and Justice Judge, Mr Justice J. R. Gregg.

Lynn claimed that the trial Judge was wrong in law and that his judgment was unreasonable and could not be supported by the evidence. He alleged that the Judge wrongly rejected evidence which caused a wrong or miscarriage of justice.

The Full Court was asked to set aside the judgment and to give a new trial.

Mr V. J. D'Alton appeared for the appellant, Lynn. The Hon. Leo d'Almeida, QC, and Mr Victor Giltnan, instructed by Mr G. H. H. Golby, represented the Incorporated Law Society of Hongkong which made the original application to Mr Justice Reece on April 26 to have Lynn struck off. The Society claimed that he had broken an undertaking not to practise on his own and that this constituted professional misconduct amounting to reasonable cause for being struck off the roll.

Mr D'Alton said that when the case first arose the original notice of motion did not set out any section or rule of any ordinance in force in the Colony. He gathered from the affidavit of Mr Dyer, the then secretary of the Law Society, that what was being alleged was that the appellant undertook the obligation to the Law Society with the deliberate intention of procuring the abstention of any opposition from the Society to any application which he might make for admission to the Supreme Court of Hongkong, and then proceeded to break the undertaking.

Counsel said that he did not know at that time when he read this affidavit, or even when he was arguing the case that the actual certificate from London embodying all the conditions that were repeated in this undertaking was actually before the Court at the time of the application to situate off. In these circumstances there would hardly be any chance that there would be fraud.

COUNSEL EXPLAINS

Mr d'Almeida explained that as a result of a letter written by Lynn and Co. to his then instructing solicitors, it became clear that there might be defects in the notice of motion and when the proceedings began he applied to amend the notice giving the law and the code under which the Society was proceeding. His application to amend was granted.

Mr D'Alton continued that after reading the affidavit of Mr Dyer he was under the impression that what was being alleged against Lynn was that he had obtained permission by means of fraud.

It was a well-known rule that no court would allow an allegation of fraud to be made unless it was made specifically with particulars of fraud, and a high degree of cogent proof was required, said Mr D'Alton.

He continued that when Mr d'Almeida opened the case for the Law Society in the application to strike off, there was no question at all but that he was relying upon only one thing—breach of an undertaking. The proposition was that quite apart from any allegation of fraud, the mere breach of an undertaking was sufficient ground to support an allegation of professional misconduct which was reasonable grounds for striking off the role. In order to support this Mr d'Almeida turned to English authorities.

EQUITY PRINCIPLES

Mr D'Alton said that he had no quarrel at all with the general proposition argued by Mr d'Almeida, and quoted by the Judge in his judgment. The authorities showed that from the earliest times there had been officers of the Court and the Court had exercised jurisdiction over these officers in a summary way sanctioned by statute and had an inherent jurisdiction to control the behaviour of these officers. This latter way was based on principles of equity, in accordance with law and conscience and not, in accordance with any rules.

In regard to the Supreme Court of Hongkong, that inherent jurisdiction had never been altered in any way, said Mr D'Alton.

He said that a qualification must be imported into this doctrine. It was that the Court, apart from its summary jurisdiction mainly exercised by the enforcement of an undertaking, when it exercised its jurisdiction to decide whether the person was suitable to be an officer of the Court, it followed certain
